

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

numberGo Releases Free Report on Solving Six Common Complaints with Quickbooks Reporting

New tips help businesses solve common reporting headaches and maximize their accounting software investment

GREENWICH, CT. August 23, 2007 – numberGo, makers of the leading reporting software, today released a free report helping businesses tackle the most common problems associated with reporting within Quickbooks software. The paper, titled “Six Common Complaints with QuickBooks (and how to solve them)”, looks at some of the limitations that hobble businesses using Quickbooks and how simple and intuitive reports can be created to help decision-making.

Most small businesses use accounting software to help track expenses, prepare and send invoices, prepare financial statements and track inventory levels. However, current accounting software does not offer a reliable way to get separate debit and credit information for lines of transaction out. Nor does the current data exporting methods give any ability to meaningfully view or manipulate the data.

numberGo’s free report includes identifying and offering solutions on issues such as:

- How to overcome static, pre-canned reports
- How to create reports that viewers can manipulate rather than just view
- How to slice and dice reports to any level of detail you want

“Since its release, Quickbooks has helped companies large and small manage their accounting,” says Joe Bonavita, chief executive officer of numberGo. “This free paper shows businesses how to fully maximize their investment in Quickbooks. With a few simple tips, users can find new ways to share, manipulate and interpret data.”

To download the free report “Six Common Complaints with QuickBooks (and how to solve them)”, go to <http://www.numbergo.com/Support/WhitePapers/SixCommonComplaintsWithQuickBooksReporting.aspx>.

About numberGo

numberGo helps businesses unlock the power of their data. Using numberGo Publisher and Reader, companies are finding it easier than ever to create and share more meaningful reports. With a special edition for Salesforce.com and plugins for Quickbooks, numberGo is helping businesses around the world make sense of their information.

To learn more, visit www.numberGo.com.

###

Media contact: Edward Yang, Edward@FirecrackerPR.com, (949) 500-6422